Forgotten Books, United States, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Canada's Relations With Foreign Countries: An Essay Of a more imposing nature are the Dominion's external trade relations. In this effect she has been given a free hand, and consequently has formed many important commercial connections. Most of her trade has been with the United States, Canada sending her natural products and receiving in exchange manufactured articles. Large quantities of Canadian fish, lumber and minerals are sent across the border, and American millers import much Manitoba wheat to mix with their inferior grades. Canada has always been dependent upon the States for a market and this has naturally led to proposals of reciprocity. In 1854 a treaty was formed which provided for the exchange without duty of the products of the sea, forest, field and mine. This arrangement, especially beneficial to the Canadian farmers, miners and lumbermen, remained in force for twelve years only. In 1865 the United States gave notice that the treaty would terminate in a year's time, thinking that Canada, in an effort to preserve her trade, would be forced into annexation. On the contrary, this action had the effect of closely uniting the Dominion with Britain by making her more dependent upon the Motherland. The question of reciprocity did not come up again until 1891. It was then apparently settled, but this settlement was in reality only temporary, as in 1911 reciprocity again constituted the issue for the elections. This was a crucial moment for Canada. The problem with which she found herself face to face was the most important of a commercial nature which had as yet confronted her. As such it deserves careful consideration. About the Publisher...
