Extrait: . . . and to submit themselves to his government in good faith. Messieurs dHauteserre and de Simeuse are not willing to bear arms against France, now that events have taken their present course, he said, aloud; they have little sympathy, it is true, with the Imperial government, but they are just the men that your Majesty ought to conciliate. They will be satisfied to live on French soil and obey the laws. Then he laid before the Emperor a letter he had received from the brothers in which these sentiments were expressed. Anything so frank is likely to be sincere, said the Emperor, returning the letter and looking at Lebrun and Cambaceres. Have you any further objections he asked of Foueh and In j-our Majestys interests, replied the future minister of police, I ask to be allowed to inform these gentlemen of their reinstatement--when it ia really granted, he...

Reviews

This publication may be really worth a go through, and a lot better than other. It really is writter in simple terms and never difficult to understand. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.
